

GENERAL INFORMATION

Hebden Hey Scout Centre, run by the Halifax District Scouts, provides excellent self-catering accommodation throughout the year for mixed parties of up to 44 and 30 persons in two separate hostels. An activity room opens onto the main field and a day centre is located below the Tom Bell hostel. £1.6 million was spent on renovating the nearby Gisbon Mill in 2007.

- Rental charges include gas for hot water, central heating and cooking
- Electric socket outlets, appliances, and drying rooms are operated on £1 coin meters.
- A payphone is available for use by visitors
- Dogs and pets are not allowed in the buildings.
- Twelve individual camp sites are available for Scouts and Guides only.
- The 37 acre site is surrounded by large woodlands owned by the National Trust, which are open to the public.

Additionally, both the Pennine Way and Calderdale Way pass close to the Centre and climbers can take advantage of the nearby Widdop rocks. There is an official Hardcastle Craggs Trail, and the South Pennine Centre at Hebden Bridge, along with its various attractions, is only 1½ miles away.
